

Helping the public sector maximize aid and global development programs

Global aid and development programs need to maximize effectiveness in order to truly serve their local communities. Our Global Development Division provides training, consulting services, technical expertise and direct assistance to both public and private sector groups and Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs) in order to maximize the success of global aid initiatives. By leveraging local companies and talent as well as the expertise and network across all PSD Global divisions, we're able to enhance the effectiveness of aid to local communities.

Combining Best Practices with Regional Expertise

PSD Global works closely with in-country companies and individuals to leverage local talent and expertise while at the same time bringing our own experience and network of experts to every project. That's why we're able to create the ideal combination of public and private sector experience and on-the-ground record of success while truly serving local communities.
